

Jenny W. Rudolph, Boston University

Week 11

Jenny W. Rudolph is an Assistant Professor in Health Services at the Boston University School of Public Health with a joint appointment to the Management Decision Research Center at the US Department and Veterans' Affairs. Rudolph's research focuses on individual, group, and organizational performance in settings where the social and/or physical consequences of making mistakes are high. Rudolph is a graduate of Harvard College, studied System Dynamics at the Sloan School of Management at MIT as a visiting scholar, and received her Ph.D. in Management from the Carroll School of Management at Boston College. Her recent work has been published in Administrative Science Quarterly, Quality and Safety in Healthcare, Research in Organizational Behavior, Handbook of Organizational Learning and Knowledge, and Handbook of Action Research. Rudolph recently received the Department of Veterans Affairs Merit Review Entry Program Career Development Grant and was selected as a participant in the National Science Foundation's Enabling the Next Generation of Hazard Researchers program.